Align and design learning for business success

Learning & Development Assessment
The most effective learning and development programs directly support an organization’s strategic business goals. An important step in enhancing your L&D program is to measure the effectiveness of your current learning activities and to identify strengths and opportunities for improvement. Our experts visit your work sites and interview key personnel, from human resources to management to line workers.

Learning & Development Competency Model
Competencies aligned with business objectives help foster an organization’s success. DuPont helps identify core competency needs so that your L&D program will focus on the skills, knowledge and abilities required to deliver business results.

Learning & Development Curriculum Design
We design learning activities that help corporations develop the skills, behaviors and competencies required to meet strategic business goals. Through internal training programs at DuPont facilities and our work with numerous clients, we have developed a unique understanding of how to blend classroom study with practical on-the-job experiences that are most effective for a particular industry, worksite or job role.

Instructional Design & Custom Content Creation
Our consulting services team employs the ADDIE (Analyze, Design, Development, Implementation, Evaluation) instructional design model to produce compelling content that resonates with the audience. From engaging video to interactive online courses to instructor-led presentations, our experts can develop blended solutions to meet your employees’ diverse learning styles.

Performance Management
Establish metrics and processes to measure the effectiveness of your L&D program. Inspire employee performance through coaching and constructive feedback.

Communication & Branding
A well designed communication plan is critical to the success of an organization’s key business or learning initiatives. Applying the insights of affective psychology, we help businesses think “affectively” and develop memorable multimedia messages that tug at the heart of and resonate with employees.
